

THE IDEA

Cleaning up the city shouldn't feel like an obligation—it should feel like being part of something bigger. We built the campaign around positive storytelling, shared experiences and local pride, transforming environmental action into a collective movement that people genuinely wanted to join.

